Community — Hurricane Harvey

Tornadoes and 62 inches of water brought widespread devastation to Houston over nearly an entire week of rain.

Our city was paralyzed.

During Hurricane Harvey, on-air talent who could make it to work, camped out at the station for days disseminating information and providing updates on flooded roads, assistance shelters and weather.

As soon as the rain ended and the waters receded, The Q Morning Zoo hand-delivered food and clothing to 32 fire and police stations around the city, where first responders worked non-stop in 72 hour shifts.

Community — Hurricane Harvey

Nearly 20% of Houston suffered severe loss from Hurricane Harvey.

Over 200,000 homes were damaged with 12,700 of those completely destroyed.

The New 93Q partnered with America's largest food bank, Houston Food Bank to collect donations.

Over multiple day-long broadcasts invited lines of cars into the parking lot to donate items for Houstonians in need.

Community - Radiothon

During the entire month of December, The New 93Q became Houston's outlet for stories of inspiration and tragedy during our 14th Annual Cares For Kids Radiothon. We used patient stories and family pleas as promos and drops to solicit donations to keep the world's largest pediatric hospital at the forefront of treatment and research.

We raised $420,375.

$150,000 of that went straight to the Texas Children's Cancer Center through a donation from Snowdrop Foundation, a non-profit created by The Q Morning Zoo personality Kevin Kline.

Community — Snowdrop Foundation

The Snowdrop Foundation was formed over 11 years ago as an extension of our annual Radiothon. It's co-founder and president, Kevin Kline from The Q Morning Zoo donated $131,000 in 2017 to Texas Children's Cancer Center for continued pediatric cancer research.

Since Snowdrop Foundation's inception, the total amount donated surpassed $1.3 million.
